

Case Study: International Footwear Resourcing Limited Office Re- Location

The Project:

Due to internal expansion, International Footwear Limited needed to relocate operations to offices behind their current building.

IFR shared IT services with their sister company L.H. Safety. The relocation will require the installation of a new local LAN, Domain, file & print servers and reconfiguration of all network settings and external services including Email and internet all of which will be independent of L.H. Safety.

As the current incumbent IT partner for IFR Limited, FORESIGHTtechnical were asked to put forward a proposal to complete the required relocation works. This included project management, supply, configuration and testing of new and existing equipment, and on site assistance within the 2 week deadline.

The Solution:

FORESIGHTtechnical put forward a project definition report which detailed the design & installation of a brand new network, separating all current services from that of their sister company.

This incorporated infrastructure installation including the assembly of the CAT5e network & switch configuration, a new domain, file and print servers, internet access and router configuration, email systems and the reconfiguration of desk top PC's to reflect their new domain details.

The project was managed by our team of highly skilled engineers, with IFR management closely involved to ensure no disruption to normal day to day operations.

The project was designed and implemented within a 2 week period meeting the requirements of IFR's board.

Paul Jackson, Managing Director for IFR commented "Due to internal expansion within LHS, it was clear we needed extra space, the most logical plan was to move IFR operations into the building behind the main offices, and with no IT infrastructure between the two, nor was there a necessity for shared systems, it was decided it would be more cost effective to create an entirely new network. FORESIGHTtechnical planned and managed in detail the project which resulted in a smooth transition meeting our deadline, didn't impact the day to day operations, and within our specified budget."
